THE ALL-REVEALING QUIZ GAME!

Object of the game:
Do you know your partner? Do you REALLY know your partner?! Play this game and you’re about to find out!
Couples are challenged to answer a host of revealing questions about their love life, their preferences, and their personal habits. All you have to do is guess exactly how your partner will answer. Guess correctly to win points. But do you tell the truth or should you bluff? If you bluff, how sure can you be that your partner won’t reveal the truth!

Before you start:
Divide into couples. Obviously it is best to be paired with someone you are dating or are married to.
Choose one player to act as the scorekeeper. The scorekeeper should enter the players’ names on a score sheet.
Each player should take one answer sheet, and write down his/her name and partner’s name at the top of the answer sheet. The woman’s name should be written above the pink column, while the man’s name should be written above the blue column.

Playing the game:
Shuffle the cards and deal one card to each player. Women should read the questions from the blue side, while men should read the questions from the pink side.
The game is played in three rounds.

Round One: The player to the left of the dealer goes first, and reads the first question on his/her card, and also reads the number beside the question. All players should write down this number along with their answer to this question on the first line of their answer sheet.
For example, if the player reading the question is a woman, she reads the first question from the blue side. The question might be “Do you like shopping with your partner?” All male players must check off their answer on their answer sheet in the blue column under their name. At the same time, their female partners guess what the men selected as the answer. The women also check off their guess in the blue column.
Conversely, if the player reading the card is a man, he reads from the pink side. All female players answer the question by checking off their answer in the pink column, while their male partners guess what the women selected by checking off a response, also in the pink column.

Warning: This game includes explicit sexual references and other content that may be deemed offensive and inappropriate. This game is not intended for anyone under the age of 18. We do not recommend playing this game with your parents or anyone else with whom you do not feel comfortable sharing intimate details about your personal life.
Once everyone has noted down their answers, the next player to the left reads the first question on his/her card. As before, all players (depending on their sex) must either write down their answer or their guess as to what their partners' answer is (on the next line down).

When all players have read the first question from their card, the players should re-read their question so that couples can check to see if their answers match. It makes the game more fun, and more controversial, if all answers are read aloud. Couples score two points for every match (there is a space on the answer sheet where players can fill in the points earned for each question). Because the game is played in couples, only one person from each couple should mark down their points. After scoring each question in round one, each couple should inform the scorekeeper how many points they earned during the round, so a running total can be kept on the score sheet.

Round Two: Play continues much the same as in round one, but players read the second question on their cards. Players do not select a new card each round, they just read a new question. In round two, players are given a choice of two possible answers. Once again, after all players have read their question, score the round and have the scorekeeper write down on the score sheet the total points earned for each couple during round two.

Round Three: For this round, the third and final question is read. Players are given a choice of three possible answers. As with the other two rounds, after all players have read their question, score the round and have the scorekeeper write down the total points earned for each couple during round three.

Playing the game with two or three couples:

If playing with two couples, we recommend each player read three questions per round. This means at the beginning of round one, three cards should be dealt to each player instead of one card. If playing with three couples, we recommend each player read two questions per round.

Winning the game:

At the end of three rounds, the scorekeeper totals up all the scores. The couple with the most points wins the game!

Cheating:

Watch out for cheating! It's easy for couples to smile, stare, blink, or play footsies in an effort to communicate with each other. Players should always be alert for secret signals! Any couple caught cheating must remove their pants for the duration of the game. If a couple gets caught a second time, off go their shirts. Get caught a third time, and the couple will have to finish the game in the nude. So, if you do cheat, don't get caught!

Note about the answer sheet:

There are six rows for each round on the answer sheet. This means that up to six couples can play the game. Of course, if you are playing with fewer than six couples, not all rows on the answer sheet will be used. For example, if only four couples are playing, answers will only be filled out on the first four rows for each round.
